Specialists in Below Ground Drainage for Civils and Utilities

Since our early beginnings in 1929, we have specialised in material distribution for Civils and Utilities customers

- Great Service
- The Right Stock
- Knowledgeable Staff

The Burdens name is rightly associated with giving great customer service, keeping the right products in stock and having staff that combine their product knowledge with an ethos of putting the customer first. Now, as part of Wolseley UK, Burdens continues to focus on the three S's of Service, Stock and Staff, all backed by the resources of one of the UK FTSE 100 plc's.

WOLSELEY

- Great Service
Putting customers first

Our customers are at the heart of what we do. We know they value exceptional product knowledge combined with a continual commitment to product innovation and value engineering. We provide all of this through our national branch network and extensive sales and commercial teams.

We recognise that great service means having the right stock and getting it to the right place when our customers need it. With our fleet of 109 vehicles and welcoming trade counters we offer our customers the choices to ensure they get what they want, when they require it.

We also understand that the safety of both staff and our customers is paramount. All of our drivers are trained to ALLMI standards for lorry loader use and undertake bespoke Driver CPC training specifically designed for our own operations and specialist handling equipment.

- The Right Stock
We stock what you need

At Burdens, we know that our customers need to be able to take for granted that their materials will be on-site and ready to use in line with their project plans. To help our customers achieve their goals we have to understand their projects as well as carry a comprehensive range of stock and schedule deliveries to make this happen.

Burdens has built strong relationships with leading material suppliers which puts us at the forefront of helping to bring new, innovative and cost-saving solutions to our customers.

Many of our customers take advantage of services that go beyond traditional product supply by utilising our bespoke logistical and warehousing solutions. This is evident in our support of key utilities suppliers where Burdens' specialist stock offering, warehousing management and logistical capabilities provide a secure foundation from which they can service their own customers.

- Knowledgeable Staff
We value experience and training

At Burdens, we recognise that our most important resource is our people. Our customers appreciate the vital contribution Burdens people make to their working relationship, bringing an in-depth knowledge and a huge wealth of experience to every job. We know it is important to ensure our knowledge remains current and relevant and we achieve this through regular training of all our staff using external bodies, suppliers and online training modules.

Our unparalleled range of expertise is reflected in the broad and diverse nature of our customer base, spanning major civil engineering and construction companies, utility providers and house builders to local authorities, specialist contractors and sub-contractors.
